

WWL-TV: Tulane Sports Medicine Physician Finds Quicker Cure for Injuries

March 07, 2024 3:36 PM

WWL-TV: More than 50 million people in the U.S. know the feeling of chronic pain. And in nearly 20 million, it causes significant limitations in work, social life, and personal care.

In athletes, pain from injury sidelines them. But now, a local doctor from Tulane has a new, quick treatment that is helping one of the causes of pain. WWL-TV Medical Reporter Meg Farris featured the work of Jacques Courseault, MD, CAQSM, FAAPMR, Sports Medicine Physician and Assistant Professor at Tulane University School of Medicine. Courseault is the founder and director of the Fascia Institute and Treatment Center.

Watch the full story above, or click here to go to WWL's site.