

WWL-TV features Tulane physicians who saved woman's life

March 08, 2024 10:00 AM

Registered nurse Ashley Pisano experienced two deadly health events on the same day. After Kendrick Johnson, MD, Assistant Professor of Neurosurgery at Tulane University School of Medicine, treated Pisano for a brain aneurysm, the 34-year old experienced stress cardiomyopathy, or Broken Heart Syndrome. Asaad Nakhle, MD, a Tulane Interventional Cardiologist practicing at East Jefferson General Hospital. The expertise of the two Tulane physicians has Pisano on her way to making a full recovery. Here's the story from WWL-TV Medical Reporter Meg Farris.