From virtual grand rounds to an in-person seminar, events are happening nearly every day of the week here at Tulane University School of Medicine. Many event notices were sent through the SOM-ALL listserv and got lost in overloaded inboxes, and the recently adopted listserv policy is designed to reduce that email deluge.

We still want our School of Medicine events to get the attention they deserve, so the Communications and Marketing team created this new calendar. This is the go-to resource for discovering upcoming TUSOM events, from lectures to community get-togethers and everything in between. Submitting events to the calendar is quick and easy -click the link, fill out the form, and the event will appear once approved.

You may have noticed a new “Weekly Rounds” email in your inbox last week. This newsletter will be sent every Tuesday morning with a full rundown of upcoming events on the School of Medicine Calendar. Events of the week will also be featured in Inside Tulane Med, the newsletter that goes out to everyone at the School of Medicine on Monday mornings.

If you’re not receiving these emails, make sure you’re opted in.
