Dr. Jones talks to parents and students about vaccines

After a long shift caring for hospitalized COVID-19 patients, Jacey Jones, MD, joined other health experts at Eleanor McMain Secondary School to answer questions and talk about the importance of getting vaccinated.

Everyone 12+ is eligible to get the COVID-19 vaccine, but data shows less than half the population in southeast Louisiana is vaccinated and the numbers are lower around the state. New restrictions are in effect in New Orleans beginning today.

Remembering Dr. Winstead

Daniel Winstead, MD passed away the morning of August 10th. Dr. Winstead served as Chair of the Department of Psychiatry for 28 years from the mid 1980's until 2013. He is survived by his two children, Teddy and Laura, both Tulane Medical School graduates, and three grandchildren Sebastian, Ainsley, and Connor.

"Hundreds of medical students, residents, faculty, and colleagues were influenced by Dan's tremendous caring and leadership skills," says Lee Hamm, MD, Senior Vice President and Dean of Tulane School of Medicine. "Dan was a stabilizing force at the executive leadership level of the medical school and was a mentor to all he encountered. We will all miss him dearly."
