Lagniappe

Mardi Gras Magic - Medical students Danielle Krakosky and Carrie Crook met in anatomy lab. Krakosky wanted to propose - and to make the moment special, she came up with the grandest plan of all, which involved having the Krewe of Muses become collaborators during their parade route. Krakosky enlisted the help of Muses rider and executive director of health system clinical affairs Ragan Gankendorff to pull off the extravagant engagement. Watch the video here!

And all hail this year's Zulu Queen, Crystal Guillemet Williams, who also happens to be the marketing and communications manager in the Department of Medicine! Check out photos from the Zulu Social Aid and Pleasure Club parade here.

Tulane Telehealth provides 24/7 access to urgent care

There's a new option available for people who want to avoid a long line at an urgent care clinic. Tulane Telehealth provides immediate 24/7 virtual access to licensed providers through its mobile app or website. It takes just minutes to connect with a provider and access general medical care for many non-emergency illnesses.

Tulane Telehealth even provides concierge coordination if the condition requires seeing a specialist for follow up care. Learn more and register here.
